The Louisville Times of last Sunday was crowded to the guard with a rehash of the Caleb Powers trials at Georgetown, purported to be a reply to the article published last spring in McClure's Magazine. Mr. McQuown's article was only a re-vamp of the so often published newspapers of the same political stripe of the Times that it failed to arouse any interest whatever.

Every one in Kentucky who knows about those trials is well aware that Caleb Powers has never yet had a fair trial before an impartial jury. They know that the jury was composed entirely of Democrats, although one, Dennis Hanley swore he was a Republican in order to get to serve on the jury.

Those of us who were there and witnessed those trials know too well the methods pursued in the summer-

izing of the venire to accept any such "tommy rot." There were a number of the neighbors and acquaintances of Dennis Hanley who were willing to swear that he was, and had been all the time, a staunch Democrat, that he was a regular "ward healer" in Democratic primaries, that at the time he served on the jury he had in his home a life-size portrait of the late Senator Goebel.

Yet the Louisville Times and a number of other yellow journals of the State are not yet satisfied, but still thirst for the blood of innocent men because of the fact that their leader was killed in the attempt to rob the people of the State of the right to a free vote and a fair count.

We admit that the murder of Senator Goebel was a horrible affair, and will leave a blot upon our State that can never be obliterated. Yet we think to deprive an innocent man of his life or liberty because he happened to oppose Mr. Goebel in his headstrong determination to rob the people of our State of the privilege guaranteed to them by the Constitution is even a worse crime and will make a blot upon the pages of our State's history that can never be effaced.

How many of the farmers have forgotten the low prices that prevailed throughout the country during the administration of Mr. Cleveland, when corn sold at from 15 to 25 cents per bushel, and wheat from 45 to 50 cents per bushel, weanling calves about $3 to $5, sucking mules from $12.50 to $20, and horse colts even lower, and finally the price went down until it was next to impossible to give them away.

All the older voters remember these facts well, and have told their boys about it. Now do you suppose anyone wants to return to a Democratic administration and have this same experience repeated? If they do let them vote the Democratic ticket by all means.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

The list of Presidential candidates are as follows:

Republican—
Roosevelt and Fairbanks.
Democratic—
Parker and Davis.
Prohibitionist—
Swallow and Carroll.
Socialist—
Debs and Hanford.
Socialist-Labor—
Correan and Cox.
Populist—
Watson and Tibbles.
Negro Liberty—
Scott and Payne.
This list will surely be ample to give every man a choice.

One evidence of weakness of the Democratic position lies in the fact that they find so much time to abuse Republicans.

Bourke Cochran gives every evidence that he was tickled with the opportunity he got to break down and confess.

The route from Esopus to the White House is over an impassable Hill.

THE JUDGE.

Judge Parker on a summer's day
Raked the meadows sweet with hay.
Beneath his bonnet buzzed the bee
Whose other name was Democracy.

Raking, he thought, and within him stirred
Thoughts—but he would not say a word.

Thoughts that he scarcely dared to own
Of something better than he had known.

But as he looked to the summer sky
A messenger came sauntering by.

"A telegram," said the kid. "By gee!
For A. B. Parker." The judge said
"Me."

The judge tore open the envelope,
And his heart beat high with a hopeful hope.

"Dear judge: You're it if you don't object.
Please wire reply. (Signed) Hill.
(COLLECT.)"

"Thanks," wired the judge. "Democracy!"

I do accept it. (Signed) A. B. P."

"Aha!" said the sage of fair Esopus,
"I guess this is my magnum opus."

"Proverbial silence must now be broke,
Though silence is golden—that ain't no joke.

"And of all glad words that e'er were writ,
The gladdest are these: "Boys, I am it."

Hooray for party! Hooray for judge!
Hooray for the message that made him budge!

—Chicago Journal

Davis Perceives a Danger.

THE Democratic candidate for Vice President has begun to hedge on the tariff question. Mr. Davis has not gone to the length of Judge Parker's dealing with the sound money issue, but understanding the vital interest of West Virginia in the protective policy, he has endeavored to construe out of the St. Louis platform its radicalism in the declaration that the only purpose of the tariff should be "the support of the Federal government in all its integrity and virility." There is further an acknowledgment of the danger "to the cause of tariff reform itself of abrupt and revolutionary reversal of policy," but no concession of the peril that such a reversal would mean to the capital and labor of the United States employed in manufacturing.

Mr. Davis takes a great amount of credit to himself for having the word "only" sticken out of the phrase "tariff for revenue only." He is entitled to the glory of that achievement, but he would not have brought it to public notice if he had not felt that an apology is due for the platform as it was adopted. The word "only" is not of supreme weight in comparison with the open avowal that the doctrine of protection of native industries is to be abandoned whenever the Democratic party is strong enough to eliminate it. Mr. Davis says that he has not changed his opinions since he was known in the Senate as a moderate protectionist, and he denies that the Democracy is free trade party, but the record of the St. Louis convention cannot be blown away by one man's breath, even if he does stand for the second place on the ticket.

If Judge Parker never does anything else, his achievement in pacifying Bourke Cochran fixes forever the status of his fame.

It probably wouldn't be a very serious party offense for Democrats to bolt. Their candidate for President bolted the platform before its ink was dry, and the convention endorsed its action. This is probably the first time on record where an entire convention was induced to bolt itself before it had adjourned.
